Kampur Travel Diaries

When we started Kampur Travel Diaries, our mission from the start was that whatever we do must be of benefit to people and the environment. Since our inception in 2018, we have been true to this and have on-going programs in the areas of education, reforestation, conservation and women empowerment (through reduction in period poverty).

How do we fund all our sustainability projects and initiatives?

The answer is very simple. Part of the proceeds from every safari booked through us goes into these programs – essentially making us a social enterprise.

In addition, we try to incorporate measures in our everyday business operations to enhance sustainability. These include (but is not limited to) items like reduction of use of single use plastic bottles, being mindful of how we use resources, reducing the amount of paper we use for printing and sending all itineraries and communication with suppliers and guests digitally.

Navigating the Deluge: Masai Mara National Reserve

Floods have often led to road closures, flight cancellations and disruptions in transportation infrastructure, making it challenging for tourists to move between destinations.

In light of recent events, we are deeply concerned about the flooding crisis that affected parts of the Maasai Mara region in Kenya. Most of the flood-hit areas revealed are those adjacent to the Mara River, Talek River and Sand River where floods have displaced people, destroyed camps and lodges along their banks and impacted the tourism sector and local economy. In an official statement to the Mara Managers Association on May 4th 2024, Chief Officer Tourism Samwel Leposo confirmed that up to then, no human casualties had been reported within the flooded areas, all tourists were safely evacuated from camps and lodges where it was needed.

Kenya's Tourism Peak Season that began from June 2024 onwards, we reassure visitors and tour operators that the Maasai Mara remains a prime destination for safari experiences and business remains stable. Kenya can continue to showcase its natural beauty and cultural heritage while ensuring the safety and satisfaction of travelers from around the world.

To book your safari adventure or for more information, please contact our dedicated TOSK members at <https://www.toskenya.org/tosk-members>

Shifting gears: The future without private vehicles in Mara.

The ban on the use of private cars for game drives in Maasai Mara Game Reserve continues to attract mixed reactions.

On the 3rd of June, the Chief park administrator, Maasai Mara Game Reserve, released a memo on 'Ban on usage of private vehicles for game drives'. The Narok County government mentioned that the prohibition was necessitated by a series of compelling factors including instances of misconduct, off-road navigation and environmental degradation, by drivers and occupants of private vehicles.

This decision has sparked both excitement and controversy among conservationists and wildlife enthusiasts. Some champion the measure as

- Crucial for preserving the Mara delicate ecosystem,
- County's dedication to promoting sustainable tourism,
- Promoting the long-term conservation of Maasai Mara's unique biodiversity, and
- To enhance the safari experience through expert guidance, conservation support and cultural immersion, while also contributing positively to local communities and wildlife conservation efforts.

Kenya's Electronic Travel Authorization (eTA): Streamlining Entry

Kenya has replaced its traditional eVisa system with an Electronic Travel Authorization (eTA). This shift helps align Kenya with international best practices and industry standards.

Requirements for Applying for Kenya's eTA

3. Contact Information

Your email address and phone number.

4. Travel Details

Information about your arrival and departure itinerary.

5. Accommodation Booking

Proof of your accommodation booking in Kenya.

6. Payment Method

A credit card, debit card, or other means of payment to cover the eTA fee.

Application Process for Kenya's eTA

1. Complete the Application Form:

Fill out the eTA application form with accurate personal and travel-related information.

2. Upload Required Documents

Provide copies of the required supporting documents, such as your passport photo and proof of accommodation.

3. Pay the Application Fee:

Pay the fee via your preferred payment method.

4. Receive Confirmation

Exempted Countries

Citizens from the following countries are exempt from paying the eTA fee but still need to apply for an eTA before traveling to Kenya:

- Ethiopia
- Comoros
- Congo-Brazzaville
- Eritrea
- Mozambique
- San Marino
- South Africa

Additionally, citizens from Kenya's fellow East African Community member states (Burundi, DR Congo, Rwanda, South Sudan, Tanzania, and Uganda) are exempted from applying for an eTA and can enter Kenya with a national ID card.

By simplifying the entry process and improving the overall travel experience, Kenya aims to attract more visitors from visa-exempt countries. The eTA's convenience and accessibility encourage spontaneous trips and benefit Kenya's tourism industry and broader economy.

General travel tips in Kenya.

Magical Kenya; a land of breathtaking landscapes, vibrant cultures and unparalleled wildlife experiences. Kenya beckons travelers with its diverse attractions, iconic savannahs, pristine beaches, rich cultural traditions just to mention a few. Kenya offers something for every traveler's taste and interest.

As you prepare for your journey to Kenya, it's essential to arm yourself with valuable insights and practical tips to ensure a smooth and unforgettable travel experience;
Research and Plan Ahead: Familiarize yourself with the places you want to visit, local customs, visa requirements and health advisories to ensure a smoother experience.

Visa and Passport:

Visa requirements may vary depending on your nationality, so check the Kenyan embassy or consulate your tour operator for specific information.

Health Precautions:

Consult a healthcare professional for any necessary vaccinations or medications before traveling to Kenya. Malaria could be a problem in certain areas, so take appropriate precautions like using mosquito repellent and taking antimalarial drugs.

Pack Accordingly:

Kenya has diverse climates, from hot and humid coastal regions to cooler highlands. Pack lightweight clothing, but also bring warmer layers if you plan to visit higher altitudes like Mount Kenya. Don't forget essentials like sunscreen, a hat and sturdy walking shoes for safaris or hikes.

Respect Local Customs:

For instance, it's customary to greet people with a handshake and it's polite to ask before taking someone's photos, especially in rural areas. Kenya has a rich cultural heritage.

Safety Precautions:

While Kenya is generally safe for tourists, it's wise to take common-sense precautions. Avoid displaying expensive jewelry or valuables, especially in crowded areas. Be cautious when using ATMs and avoid walking alone at night, particularly in urban areas.

Currency and Payment:

The official currency is the Kenyan Shilling (KES). While credit cards are widely accepted in major cities and tourist areas, it's a good idea to carry some cash for smaller purchases and in rural areas where card acceptance may be limited.

Transportation:

For safaris or remote areas, it's best to arrange transportation through a trusted tour operator.

Safari Etiquette:

If you're going on a safari, follow your guide's instructions and respect the wildlife.

Water and Food Safety:

Carry reusable water bottles to reduce plastic waste and your environmental footprint. Always consult with your tour operator for safe water refills and eatery options.

Enjoy the Local Cuisine and Culture:

Kenya offers a diverse culinary scene influenced by various ethnic groups. Don't miss the opportunity to try local dishes like nyama choma (grilled meat), ugali, and samosas and enjoy the vibrant atmosphere.

Agoro

Who is Agoro?

Agoro is an adventurer who is passionate about exploring the great outdoors. She is a mountaineer, runner, cyclist, podcaster at The About Out Podcast, and trail guide at Avi Expeditions.

What inspired you to start hiking and creating content about it?

When I first booked my hike to Buxton Tunnel in Limuru 5 years ago, I never thought that hiking would become more than a hobby—let alone a full-time profession. Initially, being outside was simply a way to take a break from office work. However, this specific hike changed my perspective entirely. The experience of connecting with nature, meeting like-minded individuals, and discovering the beauty of destinations close to home was transformative. It was beyond hiking because I truly loved being in nature which led me to book more, and do many solo hikes after that. I am a writer who loves to teach and share her experiences. The only way I could keep my trail memories alive was sharing them on platforms; for me to remember, and for others to learn. This passion for discovery led me to start creating content, capturing the beauty of each trail, and inspiring others to embark on their own adventures. The content I create serves as a medium to educate, inspire, and connect with a broader audience, encouraging them to appreciate and preserve the environment.

What are your favourite trails? Why?

There are so many but these three sets top my list: Mt Kenya, Aberdare Range, and Virunga Mountains, Uganda. Mt Kenya is one mountain with so much to offer. Second highest peak in Africa at home is a great privilege. For me, it stands out as the ultimate peak where you go to test all the effort you have been putting on the other/local trails before upgrading to Kilimanjaro. Having stood on Lenana peak over 10 times now, I find it as one of the calmest and most beautiful places to be on. The Aberdare Range is a high altitude training ground for me. The peaks are not easy at all but I love a good challenge. It is one place that gives you options. You want steep? Views? Waterfalls? Game Drive? Rain? Sun? Hailstorm? Camping? Very difficult? Depending on what you are looking for as a hiker, Aberdares will gladly offer that, and more. I love the Ugandan Virungas (Sabinyo, Gahinga, and Muhabura) because they gave me a renewed appreciation for trails outside the country. These mountains not only tested my limits but also broadened my perspective of getting out of my comfort zone. Trails are different everywhere. On Mount Sabinyo you actually get to stand at the border of Uganda, Rwanda, and DRC. Super exciting experience!

Can you share your greatest and lowest moments that have greatly impacted Agoro?

My greatest moments are Summiting Mt Kilimanjaro, and Summiting Mt Kenya. My Mt Kilimanjaro summit holds a special place in my heart because this was my second attempt for the peak. One of the most difficult hikes I have ever done but standing at 5,895m above sea level was totally a life-changing moment for me. Mt Kenya is great because of the dash moments. Dash moments are when you attempt Point Lenana in less time than the usual 3+ days. This can be in 12 or under 24hrs. I have done each of the routes at different times under 24 hours. These significant moments taught me that it takes work. A lot of it. The effort does pay off with time. There is no shortcut to the top. The higher you go, the more the demand to be better, fit, and stay ready. It stops being a competition with others and shifts inwards. You versus You. My lowest moments are DNFs. DNFs mean Did Not Finish. It is commonly used in sports but somehow found its way into mountaineering. I will call it DNS (Did Not Summit). I have had my DNS days on my hikes. The ones that hit hard were Mt Kilimanjaro and Mt Kenya. In any life circumstance, it does hurt when you set out to do something and not achieve it at all. Sometimes it can be things beyond your control but still, no summit. Years have gone by and I have realized that, on some days, man wins, on others, the mountain wins. The mountain will always be there. It is okay to try another day. You will come back stronger and summit.

What's the rewarding part in hiking?

As a trail guide, I get to share knowledge, empower others, create connections, inspire conservation, and witness growth. Being able to facilitate these moments of personal triumph for myself and others is incredibly fulfilling. As a hiker, starting a hike, summiting, and making it down back to base safely. This is often underrated but it matters a lot. The physical health benefits are immense too. Hiking has provided an opportunity for me to stay active while enjoying nature.
